AVID Training on Student Retention

On January 21-22, 2015, the AVID for Higher Education, Faculty Development & Professional Learning Day was held in the C.W. Pettigrew center. One session of the training was taught by Yvonne Ortiz-Prince and she focused on the WICOR—Writing, Inquiry, Collaboration, Organization, and Reading to Learn. During this training the Faculty learned the importance of using different strategic methods to keep students involved in their classes and to keep them motivated in their learning. The WICOR model not only help with students success during their college courses but also well beyond college graduation. WICOR helps students to enhance “Critical Thinking” as well as engage in group activities, organization of materials, assessments, notes, and also time management.

CTL Blog

The CTL blog is a great way for faculty to share their professional activities with each other. Currently, faculty are invited to share their experiences in the following areas:

- Conferences or workshops recently attended
- Summary of books of interest
- On, or off-campus service activities
- Current research, grants, or publications

We look forward to reading your blog at: http://fvsu-ctl.blogspot.com
